

San Springs.—We are indebted to the enterprising and liberal proprietor of these springs, Mr. T. E. Fox, for an invitation to what may prove to be an editorial convention. We are requested to invite Mr. L. L. Hawrins, of the Palmyra Whig, to be at the springs, on the 18th of April, proximo.

Western Watchman.—Rev. Wm. Crowell, of Maryland, is soon to take the editorial management of the Watchman. We find in the Republican a Thanksgiving sermon preached at Waterville, Me., giving his views on the "Higher Law." He advocates obedience to the fugitive slave law, because it is the law; while he decries that he is the apostle, either of the "Fugitive Slave Law," or of slavery. He is for exerting northern influence upon the south, by "argument, persuasion and example." He is severe on the Higher Law gentry; pointing out to them in a very forcible manner, the unscriptural nature and divorcing tendency of their hideous doctrine. Such are the views of the future editor of the Watchman.

Election of Senator in Florida.—Mr. R. Mallory, the recently elected Senator from Florida, is likely to have his seat disputed by Mr. Yulee. It appears there were two separate meetings of the Legislature, for the purpose of choosing a senator. In the first instance, Mr. Yulee received 29 votes, and there were 29 blank ballots. The presiding officer declared Mr. Yulee not elected, which decision was endorsed by the Legislature. At a subsequent meeting, Mr. Mallory received a majority of all the votes cast, was declared elected, and the governor's certificate issued in accordance with that decision.

Deaf and Dumb Asylum.—The following as we learn from the Fulton Telegraph, are the permanent officers of the Board of Commissioners:—J. S. Henderson, President; J. K. Shesley, Secretary; and A. A. Riley, Treasurer.

New Mexico.—There is said to be now much suffering in the northern States of New Mexico, for want of grain.

Master and Pupil.—Col. James H. Taylor, a student of the University of Maryland, has written a letter to the Hon. Daniel Webster, reminding him that more than sixty years ago (Mr. W.) was one of his pupils, when he taught school at New Salisbury. The Gloucester News publishes Mr. Webster's prompt answer to his old friend and teacher, and remarks: "We doubt if any letter that Mr. Webster has written to public bodies, or any of the thousands of noble acts of his life, reflect more credit upon him than this kind letter and generous gift to his aged and unfortunate old schoolmaster." It is indeed a beautiful letter, alike honorable to the head and heart of the writer, and as the editor of the News remarks, at a time when envy and malice are dealing blows from all quarters at America's greatest statesman, while his public course has been decided and executed by political opponents, and the basest charges are brought against his oral character, it sheds upon his name and character a fresh glory, that long after his petty traducers shall be dead and forgotten, will remain undimmed in the hearts of his countrymen.

Here is the letter of Mr. Webster, and its answer and interest are enhanced by the fact that no allusion is made in it to an enclosed fifty dollar bank note.

MASTER TAPPAN.—I thank you for your letter, and am rejoiced to hear that you are yet among the living. I remember you perfectly well as a teacher in my infant years. I suppose my mother must have taught me to read very early, as I have never been able to remember the time when I could not read the Bible. I think Master Chase was my earliest schoolmaster, probably when I was three or four years old. Then came Master Tappan. You boarded at our house, and sometimes I think in the family of Mr. Benjamin Sanborn, our neighbor the same time. Many of those who grew in New Salisbury, have gone to their graves. Mr. John Sanborn, the son of Benjamin, is yet living, and is about your age. Mr. John Culby, who married my eldest sister, Susanah, is also living. On the North Road is Mr. Benjamin Pettigall, and on the South Road is Mr. Benjamin Pettigall. I can think of none else among the living who you would probably remember.

You have indeed lived a chequered life. I hope you have been able to bear prosperity with meekness and adversity with patience. These things are all ordered for us, far better than we could order for ourselves. We may pay for our daily bread as we may pay for the forgiveness of sins; we may pay to be kept from temptation, and then the spirit of God may come in us, and in all men, and his will everywhere be done. Beyond this we hardly know for what good to supplicate the Divine mercy. Our heavenly Father knows what we have need of better than we know ourselves, and we are sure that his ever loving kindness are upon us and around us every moment.

I thank you again, my good old master, for your kind letter, which has awakened many sleeping recollections, and with all good wishes I remain your friend and pupil, DANIEL WEBSTER.

MR. JAMES TAPPAN.

THE BATEMAN CHILDREN.—We learn from a reliable source, that Mr. Bateman has engaged these children for two years, to appear entirely in Europe, and that he contracts to pay all their expenses and give them one half the net proceeds of the whole sum of their attraction, guaranteeing this half to amount to 20,000 dollars the first year, and 30,000 the next, making 50,000 dollars (nearly £10,000) in all; and we think that Mr. B. will make a handsome profit by the speculation. When Jenny Lind lived these little phenomena, she performed in the most wonderful creatures she had ever seen; and when the dilettanti of Europe see their astonishing intellectual efforts, when the land of Shakespeare witnesses the beautiful conception and delicate elaboration of the most difficult creations of the immortal bard, none will be surprised at the pains we think it honest to take, in order to keep these gifted spirits from being placed, in stranger lands, along with the mountebanks and impostors who may happen to tread at the same time, the same field of public enterprise. [N. Y. Courier and Enquirer.]

Election of Judges.—Judge Hall, we presume, should be a candidate, will be the choice of this Circuit. He is regarded as a man of business, and as being well qualified to discharge the duties connected with the office. —Bloomington Gazette.

Wool.—We clip the following paragraph from the Wheeling Argus: "The western Ohio papers say that speculators are already in the field contracting for the next clip of wool. Wool has advanced 6 to 10 cents a pound, and ranges from 45 to 54 cents."

An Act concerning Probate Courts, Executors, Administrators, Guardians and Curators.

Section 1. When an executor, administrator, guardian or curator shall see real or leasehold property by order of court, and after such sale shall remove from the State, design or direct his letters or appointment shall be revoked before he shall have executed a deed of the property to the purchaser, his successors or may make such deed with the same effect as if made by the party who made the sale.

Section 2. Where real or leasehold property has been or may be sold by order of any Probate Court, and the executor or administrator thereof, the deed of the property shall be made by the Clerk of the Court, if there be one; otherwise, by the Judge thereof.

Section 3. Every Judge of a Probate Court, now or hereafter established, may appoint a Clerk of his Court, who shall before assuming his office, make (under oath and subscription) an oath faithfully to discharge the duties thereof, and who shall hold his office at the pleasure of the Judge. The order of appointment of such clerk, if made in term time, shall be entered on the record at the time made in vacation, it shall be entered on record at next succeeding term of the court.

Section 4. Clerks of Probate Courts shall have power to administer oaths and take affidavits, depose witnesses, and the proof of knowledge of deeds and other instruments of writing, in the same manner, and charge the same fees therefor, as a Clerk of a Circuit Court.

Section 5. Clerks of probate courts shall also have the same power, and perform the same duties, as are now or may hereafter be vested in or required of Judges of such courts, as to all matters connected with the probate of wills and granting letters testamentary of administration, subject to the approval of the court in term time.

Section 6. In case of the death or resignation of Judge of Probate, the clerk shall continue to perform the duties designated in the next preceding section, until another Judge shall be elected or appointed and qualified. In such case, if there be no clerk, or if the clerk be absent from the county, and do not return within five days after such death or resignation, the county court shall appoint a suitable person to be clerk of the probate court until a Judge shall be elected or appointed and qualified, who shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as if he had been appointed by the Judge of Probate, and whose acts authorized in this and the next preceding section, shall be subject to the approval of the court in term time.

Section 7. So much of the act respecting St. Louis Probate Court, approved March 10th, 1840, as requires the appointment of a clerk of said court to be approved by the Judge of the circuit court of St. Louis county, and to be filed in the office of the county court of said county, is repealed.

Section 8. Public sales of real estate situated in the county of St. Louis, made in pursuance of an order of the probate court of said county, shall be at the court house door in the city of St. Louis, on some day when the circuit or probate court of said county, or the St. Louis court of common pleas is in session.

Section 9. Executors, administrators, guardians and curators shall have the same remedy for the recovery of property, to the possession of which they may, in their representative capacity, be entitled, and which is unlawfully in the possession of others, as is given to public administrators, by the act respecting public administrators, approved January 27, 1845.

Section 10. Where an order is made by court upon an executor or administrator to pay over money to the legatees or distributees of an estate, and he fails to make such payment, such proceedings may be had against him and his securities to compel such payment, as are authorized in cases where an executor or administrator fails when ordered to pay demands allowed against an estate.

Section 11. When an executor, administrator, guardian or curator resigns or dies, or his letters or appointment are revoked, the county court may, in any practicable way, the amount in his hands in his representative capacity; and his successor may have such proceedings against him and his securities to compel the payment thereof, as are authorized in cases where an executor or administrator fails when ordered to pay demands allowed against an estate.

Section 12. All laws, existing or future, which apply to county courts, in relation to administrators, guardianships, curatorships and probate business generally, shall, unless therein otherwise specifically provided, apply to all probate courts now or hereafter established. This act shall be in force from and after its passage.

Approved, March 3, 1851.

SOMETHING PITHY.—Four elegiacs—A Baptist, a Presbyterian, a Methodist, and a Roman Catholic, met by agreement to discuss a fish. "Baptist" got up, and said, "The fish hole is a round with a hole in the head, and taking about one-third of the fish, coming out the head, removed it to his plate, and said, 'as he said down, with satisfaction, "Papa, cat papu ecclesiastical," the Pope is the head of the church. Immediately the Methodist Minister arose, and inquired of himself to about one-third, embracing the tail, seated himself saying, "Papa, cat papu ecclesiastical," the Pope is the head of the church. The Presbyterian now thought it was about time for him to move, and taking the remainder of the fish to his plate, and claiming, "in media res," from his brethren, between the two extremes. The Baptist brothers had nothing before him but an empty plate and the promise of a stimulant and snatching up, he bowed himself (quitting) but he dashed over them exclaiming, "Ego Baptista sum, I baptize you—Old Outen Duck."

BALTIMORE, March 17, 8 P.M. A dispatch from Canada, &c., announces the death of Gen. George McDougall.

BOYTON, March 21 8 P.M.

The bark Hamilton, from the Cape of Good Hope, arrived in forty days. The Caffre Chiefs rebelled against the English authorities and fired. Live accounts state that the Hottentots were also wavering in their loyalty from last December, skirmishes being continual among the rebels and English native allies, in which the former were always victorious, when the actions were in the open field. Accounts are daily received of the murders of farmers in all parts. Sir Henry Smith, the English Governor, was forwarding arms to the scene of war. The colonists were adding help, believing in the prompt suppression of the rebellion their only safety. The Governor would soon be at the head of 10,000 men.

On the 22d of January, the Caffres, 3,000 strong, attacked the colonists near Fort Harris, and were repulsed with the loss of 100 killed. On the 31st of January, a strong force of Caffres attacked Fort Water; they were dispersed with 20 killed. On the 29th, the Rebel Chief with his bands of Caffres and Hottentots, attacked Fort Buffalo and were repulsed; the Chief his son, and a number of his people were killed.

COUNTERFEITERS' TALKS.—Are various and deeply laid, in order to deceive, that they may obtain good money for bad without being detected and punished. As we have repeatedly said, the country is lately filled with spurious bank notes, and in some instances the spurious bank notes to many people more than the genuine, it has better work upon it, and would be taken in practice, if it were alone were a goal. One of the latest operations of a counterfeiter, in clipping off the end of a counterfeit bill which has the mark of detection on it, and a like end from a good bill, and then putting the good end of the bad bill, and the bad end of the good bill. When the bad bill is offered, to nearly have the parts been put together, a careless and unacquainted person is very apt to receive the bad bill, and funds too late, that has been swindled. If the good bill is disputed, the holder of it claims that both genuine signatures are on it, notwithstanding the spurious piece is taken off, and then he claims that it will pass in bank. A great many counterfeit ones on Ohio and Kentucky are in the hands of other notorious means, passed on the community, even after a description is made public. It therefore, requires unusual caution to avoid imposition when receiving money. —Cin. Gazette.

WASHINGTON, March 19.

The reply from Hulseman to Mr. Webster, published this morning by order of the Imperial Government, states that the opinion of that Government is not changed with respect to the mission of D. D. Mason, but it is unwilling to prolong any discussion on so annoying an incident, which might disturb the amicable relations so long existing, without leading to any practical results.

Mr. Webster replies, under date of 15th inst., that this government was as little willing as that of Austria, to prolong the discussion. He reaffirmed his former assertion of American principles and policy as fixed and immutable, and regrets that his letter has not satisfied the Austrian government.
